Indian Contract Win

Mobile Tornado Group plc the instant mobile messaging service provider specialising in Push-To-Talk services ('PTT') today announces its largest-ever contract win. The multi-million dollar order, for a potential 1 million user licences, is for the Indian mobile market and has been placed by Terracomm.

Terracomm Teleservices Pvt Limited is an Indian sub-contractor to the Indian state procurement company ITI, who in turn is supplying BSNL, the large state-owned telecommunications operator.

Under the terms of the deal, Mobile Tornado is responsible for supplying software licences to its patented IPRS Push-to-Talk technology platform, as well as procuring the associated third party hardware and software with which IPRS works. Mobile Tornado will also provide professional services to help install and configure the system in BSNL's network.

Delivery of the first phase, a 200,000 user system, has already commenced with additional licences to be added as the market grows.

Gurmeet S Johal, Director of Terracomm said:

'A key selling point of Mobile Tornado's IPRS system is that it supports handset inter-operability today, enabling the connection of Nokia phones using Nokia Push-to-Talk client software to Motorola phones using Motorola Push-to-Talk client software. We look forward to a successful collaboration with Mobile Tornado.'

John Swingewood, Chairman of Mobile Tornado, said:

'Our IPRS technology helps mobile operators grow revenues and retain customers. This order from India, together with others from China and elsewhere, positions us very strongly in the emerging mobile data market for presence-based messaging, Push-to-Talk and other closely related services.'
