Mobile Tornado expands its business into South America

Partnership agreement with TecnoVoz Limited

Mobile Tornado, one of the world leaders in convergent, instant communications, today announces that it has signed a partnership agreement with TecnoVoz Limited ("TecnoVoz") in Argentina to provide Push To Talk over Cellular ("PoC") services to the enterprise and mobile operator market. Branded "Walkei Talkei" this service is commercially available immediately.

Until now, mobile operators and enterprise organisations have traditionally had to incur significant capital expenditure in order to roll out new value added services including Push to Talk ("PTT"). Now operators and enterprises can enjoy using instant voice communications in a cost effective manner.

Under the terms of the deal, TecnoVoz will host Mobile Tornado's Push-To-Xperience platform providing access to PTT services. Mobile Tornado is responsible for supplying software licences to its patented IPRS PTT system, and providing 3rd line support.

Jeremy Fenn, CFO of Mobile Tornado, said:

'Mobile Tornado is pleased to announce its expansion into South America. Following successful deployments of the Company's flagship PTT product in North America, Europe, Middle East and Asia Pacific we are ready to bring cutting edge telecommunication technologies to the South American market. A combination of rapidly developing regional economies with largely untapped customer bases in both corporate and consumer sectors creates a unique opportunity for our products in that region. PTT communication solutions are almost non-existent in the South American markets and Mobile Tornado is in a strong position to bridge that gap.'
